This building was originally built in 1956 as the Barrington Public Library and remodeled in 1979 into the Township Building. The building is a one-story, brick veneer, side-gabled Colonial Revival style building with a gable roof of asphalt shingles, a continuous poured concrete foundation, two exterior wall brick chimneys and an exterior of stretcher bond brick veneer. On the main (E) façade is a gable roof entry porch with original Tuscan wood columns and ca. 1980, wrought iron railings. The main entrance has an original paneled wood door with two leaded glass lights and leaded glass sidelights. The windows in the building are original, six-over-nine double hung wood sash. At the eaves are modillion blocks. The gable field of the porch has an elliptical attic window with a keystone and a sunburst pattern. In the center of the ridgeline of the roof is a hexagonal cupola with louvered vents and a weathervane.
